Lecture Outline:

The concepts of “globalization” (グローバル化) and “communicative competence” (コミュニケーション能力) are often used as buzzwords to describe the goals of English-language education in the twenty-first century, yet these terms tend to be used loosely and with different meanings for different people. The lecturer will provide an interpretation of what these concepts mean for English education in Japan. In addition, participants will be given the chance to consider the concepts in relation to their own classrooms and to share their ideas with others. The lecture will be primarily in English, but there will be opportunities for discussion in Japanese as well.

(講演は英語で行いますが、質疑応答・ディスカッションは日本語でも行います。)
